See your favourite hockey players as you've never seen them before!

HE SHOOTS... HE SKEWERS!

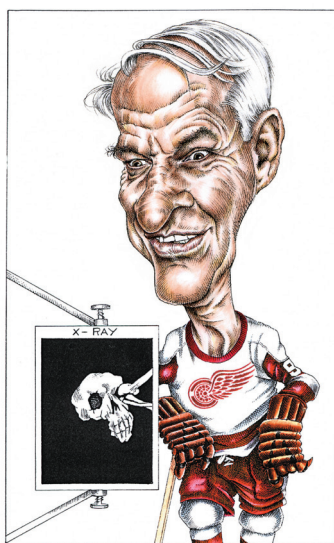

Written and Illustrated by Randy Duncan

OCTOBER 2010
ISBN 978-09734671-92
$27.95 CAN/US, 160 PAGES
ART BOOK

Do you remember playing hockey in your backyard as a kid, dreaming of fame and fortune as you fished your wayward shot out of a snowbank? This book caricaturizes the guys who didn't miss ... at least not very often! Past meets present as today's superstars and legends of yore are immortalized in the funniest, weirdest and sometimes most absurd moments in the game we all love.

- See what Don Cherry would look like as a masked crusader, defending the NHL from dastardly Russian defectors.
- Find out what Alexander Ovechkin has in common with Paris Hilton.
- Learn the real reason Sidney Crosby refused to shake hands with some of the Red Wings after the 2009 Stanley Cup final.
- Discover Vladislav Tretiak's goaltending secret during the 1972 Summit Series.
- Relive the battle of wits between Patrick Roy and Jeremy Roenick during the 1996 Stanley Cup playoffs.
- Find out what would happen if the Sutters met the Staals around a poker table.

WE BELIEVE WE FOUND THE REASON FOR THE SWELLING MR. HOWE!

If a picture is worth a thousand words, some of the words in these caricatures might very well draw an unsportsmanlike penalty!

ABOUT RANDY DUNCAN:

Randy Duncan began drawing caricatures in class during public school and his grades sometimes reflected this. He later went on to study fine arts at Champlain College and graphic design at Concordia University. His artwork has since appeared in many newspapers, including the Montreal Gazette, Winnipeg Free Press, Edmonton Sun, and Ottawa Citizen.

Ultimately it was these cartoons that gave him inspiration for the recently released book of hockey caricatures, He Shoots ... He Skewers!

ONCE AGAIN, SID OPTED NOT TO SHAKE HANDS.
